Dear Prof. N. K. Lokanath,

This letter is to confirm our interest in collaborating on the research proposed under the title “Drug design and Development”.

Aurigen is a drug discovery company committed to the vision of being the most respected and valued scientific collaborator in India. We have a keen interest in understanding information and information technology in the domain of biological field research and the complex issues raised by this process. As you know, for many years now, we have been tracking many issues of this type and the potentials for synergy are thus great.

The research proposed under this effort would help us to better understand the working of the drugs. Thus, I would be pleased to actively involved in this research, providing insight and inputs on areas that we see as challenging and applying the theories, methodologies and technologies developed under this research where they can help us to think out the contours of alternatives futures and of collaboration in the domain of new ways of development of the drugs.

We look forward to this cooperation with you and your institution.

Sincerely,

Aurigen Discovery Technologies Limited,
